

ROSEVILLE Ethics Tip

April 2011

Maybe I should ask myself some questions?

In their book, 'Business Communication: Process and Product,' by Mary Ellen Guffay, Patricia Rogin, and Kathleen Rhodes, they share a suggestion... They recommend that you simply ask yourself a few questions to determine if your potential actions are ethical.

- Is what I'm about to do legal?
- How would I view my action if I was on the other side?
- How would my friends or family feel if they found out about what I am planning to do?

Please join us on Thursday, April 14, 2011, starting with a light dinner and social hour at 5:00 p.m., for Roseville's annual ethics training. Then, at 6:00 p.m., Hamline University Professor Attorney David Schultz will conduct the training. We will be discussing ethical questions and talking about how to identify issues such as conflicts of interest. We look forward to seeing you on April 14.

Sent on behalf of the Roseville Ethics Commission

Interested in learning more about City Ethics? Visit CITY ETHICS at www.cityethics.org

CITY ETHICS is a non-profit organization formed in 2000. Its purpose is to provide a centralized location for information and resources for all forms of local government ethics programs.